

The School of Humanities and Social Sciences of the University of St. Gallen (HSG), Switzerland, seeks to appoint four

Senior Lecturers (75%)

by 1 February 2013 or by mutual agreement. For each position the teaching requirement is 8 weekly contact hours per semester. The positions are available in the following subjects:

History

We are looking for competencies in the economic, cultural and political history of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, taking account of national, European and global perspectives. www.shss.unisg.ch/ge-schichte.

Philosophy

Applicants should have a broad approach both historically and systematically, with a focus in the area of practical philosophy. We are also looking for connections to the current research interests of the Department of Philosophy. www.shss.unisg.ch/philosophie.

Psychology

We are looking for applicants with an international publication record who can create a bridge between psychological, social and cultural theories, and who have a strong connection with problematizations relevant to the field of organization and management. Potential synergies with the research themes and conceptual/methodological approaches of the Research Institute for Organizational Psychology are essential. www.opsy.unisg.ch.

Sociology

Applicants should have a broad approach to the field of sociology, with an interest in making connections to economic and management sciences.

We are also looking for connections to the current research interests of the Research Institute of Sociology. www.sfs.unisg.ch.

For all the positions, duties will lie in teaching and research as well as in the operational direction and coordination of the teaching offered for the Assessment Year. The focus of the teaching itself will also lie in the area of the Assessment Year (for more details, please see www.unisg.ch/Studium/Bachelor/Assessmentjahr.aspx). The languages of instruction are German and English. English speaking candidates must agree to learn German within two years. An outstanding doctorate is a prerequisite of employment. Applicants should demonstrate broad teaching experience as well as a high level of pedagogical competence; the latter should be documented by teaching evaluations and, where appropriate, proofs of pedagogical training.

Experience with interdisciplinary work, especially in connection with management, economics, law and/or political science, will be seen as an advantage.

Please send applications (cover letter, cv and list of publications) together with a sample of work (e.g. article or book chapter) to Ulrich Schmid.

A place of science creation

Internationality, practical relevance and an integrative view characterize studies at the University of St.Gallen (HSG).

As one of Europe's leading business universities, we are committed to the education of just over 6,800 students, and as one of the region's attractive employers, we provide some 1,500 people with jobs. Whether in teaching, in one of the 40 or so institutes and research centers, in the field of executive education or in administration – our staff join us to shape the future.

University of St.Gallen

Prof. Ulrich Schmid
Dean of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences
Gatterstr. 1
9010 St.Gallen
ulrich.schmid@unisg.ch
<http://www.shss.unisg.ch>